“ Bre was the very first friend I had made when I came to Ironton schools for the first time. She quickly became my best friend, and stayed my best friend for many years. Bre had such an outgoing and expressive personality. She was never afraid to express her love and her excitement about things. I remember going to the lake with Bre one time. It was just us two, and we brought our children. We sat and talked while we watched our children play. I remember how she looked around the lake and started to talk about how beautiful it was that day. The sun was shining through the trees and it was warm out. She took pictures of the trees because she loved the view and the peacefulness. That day is a reminder to me that Bre had a peaceful nature and she loved those little things in life. I will always remember Bre when I see a beautiful view, like the one we saw that day at the lake. I can only imagine the beautiful view that Bre is looking at now, in heaven. Rest in peace, Bre. You'll never be forgotten. My deepest condolences to Mary, Vince, and the family. - Shelby Sprouse
